

Spring 2020

ANTH-355-01 Culture in Science Fiction (2 credits)

This course is an exploration of the imaginative worlds of anthropology and science fiction and the ways in which these imaginary worlds overlap, influence each other, and often resemble one another.

ARTST-121-01 Studio I: Stained Glass (4 credits)

This course is designed to acquaint students with three basic areas in the study and construction of stained glass; history, design concepts, and skills in cutting, soldering, and fitting glass. Basic course materials will be supplied, however students may be required to obtain additional materials necessary to complete their projects. Basic course materials will be supplied, however students may be required to obtain additional materials necessary to complete their projects.

will inform student p
understanding of pro

ARTST-121-03 Stud
Students will explore techniques. Projects
teamwork, and play.
problems. Basic cour
additional materials

ARTST-221-01 Stud
Students will explore
also have the opport
3D clay printer. Basi
obtain additional ma

ARTST-222-01 Stud

goods, services, and information in a global context. Using case studies, simulation, and advanced Excel tools, the course explores important areas of supply chain management (such as logistics, procurement, transportation, and demand planning) in an integrated context.

CIV/HUM-355-02 Habitat for Humanity Travel to Romania (2 credits)

Travel Course from May 29-June 13, 2020

Students will travel to Romania where they will engage in cultural explorations and volunteer with Habitat for Humanity. The course will begin with visits to Bucharest -- a modern large city - - and Southern Transylvania, where students will learn about Romania's culture, politics, art, architecture, and food. In the second week, students will volunteer with Habitat for Humanity and build houses for low-income families. Permission from the instructor required. Please contact Ramona Ilea (ramona.ilea@pacificu.edu) or Roxana Ciochina (rciochina@pacificu.edu). Fulfills CE and IDP core requirements.

CJLS-355-01 Technology and the Law (4 credits)

This course is interested in the law's response and failure to respond to 21st century phenomena

HIST 155-01 Global History of Food (4 credits)

This course introduces students to the history of food practices from the ancient world to the present. The first half of the course examines philosophical and religious attitudes towards eating habits and the transfer of these ideas through empire, trade, and migration in the ancient world. The second half of the course covers the globalization of food, the impact of food cultivation on the environment, the industrialization of food systems, and dining out culture in the modern period. Throughout the course we will examine the relationship shared between cooking and eating and national, ethnic, class and gender identities.

HIST 255-01 Political History of Emotions (4 credits)

Humans are not simply rational beings. Emotions play a dramatic role in the way we experience the world. Yet traditional history often omits explorations of life's affective dimensions. This course will investigate the role of emotions in modern American politics. Drawing on new methodologies developed in the fields of neuroscience, psychology, philosophy, and economics, we will try to understand how rage, resentment, and hatred as well as empathy, hope, and humanitarianism motivates involvement in the public sphere. Whether the issue is power or national security, capitalism or culture, feelings intertwine with cognition.

HUM-355-01 Habitat for Humanity Travel to Romania Preparation (2 credits)

This class is required for students taking the Habitat for Humanity Travel to Romania, but it can also be a standalone 2-credit class. Permission from the instructor required. Please contact Ramona Ilea (ramona.ilea@pacificu.edu) or Roxana Ciochina (rciochina@pacificu.edu). Fulfills the International and Diverse Perspectives Core Requirement.

HUM/CIV-355-02 Habitat for Humanity Travel to Romania (2 credits)

Travel Course from May 29-June 13, 2020

Students will travel to Romania where they will engage in cultural explorations and volunteer with Habitat for Humanity. The course will begin with visits to Bucharest -- a modern large city - - and Southern Transylvania, where students will learn about Romania's culture, politics, art, architecture, and food. In the second week, students will volunteer with Habitat for Humanity and build houses for low-income families. Permission from the instructor required. Please contact Ramona Ilea (ramona.ilea@pacificu.edu) or Roxana Ciochina (rciochina@pacificu.edu). Fulfills CE and IDP core requirements.

PACU 155-01 Advantage: Social Impact Professions (1 credits)

Course description coming soon. Please see the following informational handout (pdf).

PH 255-

organizations working to bring needed healthcare to rural, underserved areas. The trip will end with a multi-day safari seeing many of Africa's "big 5" animals in Etosha National Park.

Interested students should register for both PH 255 and PH 355 in the spring term. The 255 preparation course will meet at a to-be-determined time. We don't want anyone to have to miss out on the course because of a scheduling conflict, so we will determine a time that works after everyone has registered. We predict the travel course will be in Namibia from approximately the evening of May 18 to June 3rd or 4th, though the exact dates are subject to flight availability at the time of purchase.

PH 355-01 NT: Travel Namibia Public Health (2 credits)

This interdisciplinary travel course uses experiential learning in Namibia as a means to explore themes of global health, international development, community-based models of development, and globalization. The course partners with the University of Namibia and local non-governmental organizations in the northern Oshana region. On-campus activities are supplemented with visits to local service agencies and sites of cultural and historic importance. Participants must successfully complete PH 255 and pay all program fees in the academic term preceding travel. Fulfills International and Diverse Perspectives (IDP) requirement.

POLS 355-02 NT: Politics of Nuclear Weapons (4 credits)

A survey of the history, politics, and strategic rationale for nuclear weapons policy from Hiroshima to the present. Course will include discussion of the effects of nuclear weapons use, deterrence theory, movements and agreements attempting to limit nuclear weapons, and in-depth analysis of major events in the history of nuclear weapons, including the decision to use nuclear weapons against Japan, the Cuban Missile Crisis, the Cold War nuclear arms race, and efforts to block nuclear weapons acquisition by rogue states such as Iran and North Korea. 4 credits.

SOC 150-01 Intersectionality (4 credits)

Course description coming soon.

SOC 355-03 NT: Blackness in the U.S. (4 credits)

This course provides an exploration of the social construction of blackness in the United States. Students will engage in an analysis of how blackness has been created and maintained in social construction of blackness shapes the experiences of black individuals in the United States.

It provides a foundation for understanding how the intersectionality of blackness, as